► Read the following passage, then answer the questions:

'Haya Karima' (which means 'Decent Life') is a national initiative recently launched as a national project aiming to improve the quality of life for the people in the Egyptian countryside and raise the efficiency of the services provided to them. Most villages in Egypt suffer from a shortage of some development services and facilities, such as clean water networks, sanitation, gas, electricity, schools, and hospitals.

The initiative focuses on developing agricultural projects in various areas in Egypt. It provides marketing and investment solutions to these lands in addition to all relevant businesses associated with the project, including the division of lands and offering these lands to investors, small farmers, and the youth for the cultivation and development of these lands. The aim is to achieve sustainable development in this area through developing regional communities and attracting Egyptian investors and small farmers, and youths to live and work in there.

Regarding the countryside development, Egypt seeks to treat the wastewater that is dumped into the sea or lakes. The treated water will then be reused in new projects across Sinai. Thus, a total of 100,000 feddans will be ready for agricultural use in Sinai using the treated water.
