

PASTOR'S BLOG : Devastated by Jesus

Dear Friends,

For some people in Canada, becoming a follower of Jesus is devastating. This simple decision ruins life as they knew it. For long time Christians, especially those who also have Christian families, becoming a Christian can be easy and relatively trouble free. However, for an increasing number of Canadians, to become a follower of Jesus - to trust Him as Saviour and learn to follow Him as Lord - can mean a loss of all friends and family and threaten their career.

Over the last couple of months I have read two very good recent auto biographies by people whose lives were devastated by Jesus. I highly recommend them.

The first book is by Rosaria Champagne Butterfield and is entitled The Secret Thoughts of an Unlikely Convert. She also has a website: rosariabutterfield.com. She was a tenured English professor at Syracuse University. She was a lesbian in a lesbian relationship and the faculty advisor to the give main LGBT groups on campus. Her book describes the process that led to her conversion and, as you can imagine, the huge consequences on her life.

The second book is by Nabeel Qureshi. The book is called Seeking Allah, Finding Jesus. He does not seem to have his own website, but you can go to www.rzim.org/bio/nabeel-qureshi for more info. Nabeel grew up as a devout Muslim, the grandson of Muslim evangelists. This moving biography has an extended opening section on what it is like to grow up in a devout, loving Muslim family. This book then traces the process that led to Nabeel's conversion and briefly touches on the profound consequences this had on his family and his life. Both books are very good at talking about the worries they had as they were being drawn to Jesus. They anticipated problems. The surprise was that the problems were worse than they had anticipated and that the trouble was so worth it.

So, please pray for your friends and family and co-workers. Be sensitive to the cost of following Jesus. As you become more sensitive to the cost your friend will bear to follow Jesus, pray for a humble, compassionate confidence to continue bearing witness of Jesus to them. Remember, He really did die on the cross. He really did rise. He really is the Saviour. Alleluia!
